

Erratic Government

Media reports circulating abroad describe both our Government and tourist drivers as being erratic. In this era of condensed soundbites, reports have appeared suggesting that they are one and the same thing, and that the New Zealand Government is now mainly driven in a foreign manner and for the benefit of organisations abroad.

Various remedies have been suggested to remedy both erratic behaviours, the most simple of which is 'to take the Key away', if either the Government or Tourist Vehicles are behaving erratically.

Although this action is not yet publicly supported by the police or other official bodies, there have been instances where it has prevented severe consequences, and the time is fast approaching to institute the Key removal mechanism to save New Zealand and New Zealanders from increasingly erratic, irrational, and blinkered policies.

Whenever you see our Government being driven in an unsafe, undemocratic and dangerous manner don't hesitate to let the media, your MP and friends know that the 'Key Problem' of New Zealand is just that, and needs removing.

Submitted NZ Herald, Tues 3rd March 2015